RECITALS

By participating in the Open Libraries project, libraries, together, are building an at-scale controlled digital lending service to provide digital learners and print-disabled patrons access to digital versions of books residing in their stacks.

Internet Archiveâ€™s Open Libraries project offers the prospect of making every libraryâ€™s collection into a digital collection by allowing a library to lend a digital version of physical volumes they own. Our priority is to provide access to books that are not yet available in digital form.

Leveraging the Internet Archiveâ€™s controlled digital lending platform we aim to eventually offer access to four million books, through purchase or digitization, while honoring the rights of creators using digital rights management software.

AGREEMENT

Your Organization's Name ("the Library") *

The Library will share their catalog of books with the number of copies of each book with the Internet Archive. The Library has the option to do this via MARC record exports, OCLC, or through Library Link. This will be updated quarterly.

The Library may set parameters as to which books may be lent digitally (â€œBooksâ€), and adjust this from time to time. The Internet Archive will make appropriate adjustments to those offered for lending as time permits.

The Library may sign up for the Books for the Print Disabled program via https://docs.google.com/forms/d/e/1FAIpQLSfClhUkTvF5z29hhxoi5UgaB1_50lr8F7H V5Cq0ABdztX9CkA/viewform and promote it to the appropriate communities they serve.

The Library may integrate links to the borrowable Books in their catalog and other services.

The Internet Archive will add Books to the collections offered on the Internet Archiveâ€™s sites. The Internet Archive has the option to exclude any Books for any reason.

The Internet Archive will offer online access to statistics as to how many Books were borrowed each month in their state or country.
